Partners and Participants from Previous Editions

I was blown away by how engaging the conversations were and by the agenda. Seeing civil society drive the agenda, meant a lot to me and sets AHAIC apart. The intentionality in trying to break the silos, bringing the climate change, HIV, Malaria and other conversations brought it all together.

Angelo, AVAC

AHAIC was exceptionally organized by the team. As an organization, we managed to launch our re-imagine movement for PHC in Kigali. It was fantastic with high participation from all over the globe from Ghana, Nigeria, United States of America. AHAIC is an example of the kind of Africa that we want to build. We established multiple partnerships from the conference. The Ubuntu spirit was definitely felt, see you in 2025!

Lola, formerly Pathfinder

The feedback was overwhelmingly positive. We managed to launch the WIN (Women in Innovation) fund, which got recognition as one of the leading marketing campaigns on International Women's Day. It also spun various opportunities for the fund which have been very promising and very positive for us. A big thank you for the platform and for providing that kind of convening. We are looking forward to deepening the partnerships and seeing how we can work together in the future.

Hamza, Reckitt

There was no better time to discuss the discourse between climate change and health. At AHAIC we built on the gains, the best practices and learnt from different communities and people. There was a great variation of diverse speakers. The team was very helpful in getting us speakers for our session.

Sophie, City Cancer Challenge
